

Notes on Contributors

William J. Clark is currently Assistant Professor of American Studies at the University of Wyoming and has published in the areas of late-nineteenth century American literature, American art and popular culture.

Heather McAsh is a Ph.D. candidate in History at the University of Arizona. She is interested in the interpretation of photographs as historical sources and has interned at the Center for Creative Photography in Tuscon.

William E. Lenz, Associate Professor of English at Chatham College, is author of Fast Talk and Flush Times: The Confidence Man as a Literary Convention (University of Missouri Press, 1985). He is currently completing a manuscript on nineteenth-century American exploration literature and the Antarctic.

Mark J. Bouman is Associate Professor of Geography at Chicago State University. He is completing a manuscript on the role and image of street lighting in Western urbanization.

Louise C. Wade is Professor of History at the University of Oregon. Her publications include Graham Taylor: Pioneer for Social Justice, 1851-1938 (University of Chicago Press, 1964), and Chicago's Pride: The Stockyards, Packingtown, and Environs in the Nineteenth Century.

Keith R. Burich is a Professor of History at Canisius College in Buffalo. He is currently completing a monograph entitled 'One Dead, the Other Powerless to be Born': The Two Worlds of Henry Adams on Henry Adam's application of science to history.