

Notes on Contributors

Dr. Stephen Wilbers is Associate Director of the Program in Creative and Professional writing at the University of Minnesota. Author of The Iowa Writer's Workshop: Origins, Emergence, and Growth (University of Iowa Press), he has published a number of stories, interviews and articles on a variety of topics, most recently on American Sign Language. He is currently at work on a writing handbook for university administrators.

Bruce Michelson, who chairs the American Civilization program at the University of Illinois, has published on Nathaniel Hawthorne, Mark Twain, Robert Lowell, Edith Warton, F. Scott Fitzgerald and Richard Wilbur. He is finishing a study of the status of ideas in classic American fiction.

Timothy B. Spears is a graduate student in the History of American Civilization at Harvard University. He is presently completing a dissertation on traveling salesmen in American culture.

Patrick Murphy, assistant professor of English at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, specializes in modern American poetry. Author of twenty critical essays, primarily on poetry, he has coedited Essentials of the Theory of Fiction (Duke), as well as Science Fiction from China and The Poetry Fantastic (both forthcoming from Greenwood), and has edited Critical Essays on Gary Snyder (forthcoming G. K. Hall). He is currently working on books about Joanna Russ and Gary Snyder.