Southern Outcast

Hinton Rowan Helper and The Impending Crisis of the South

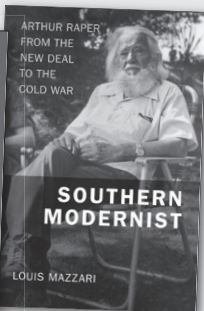

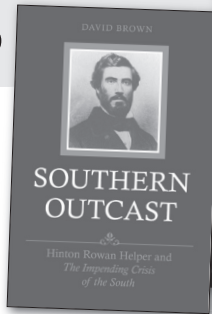

DAVID BROWN

"Brown asks fresh questions about Helper's motivation for writing The Impending Crisis of the South, frames that text both within Helper's other books and the intellectual and political framework of the day, and sorts out its long term meaning. Southern Outcast is very well written, sensibly organized, and carefully argued."—John David Smith, editor of Black Soldiers in Blue: African American Troops in the Civil War Era

It's Our Day

America's Love Affair with the White Wedding, 1945–2005

Katherine Jellison

"Jellison's fascinating and well-written account of Americans' love affair with the lavish white wedding reveals how popular culture has both mirrored and encouraged the hopes and desires of those about to marry." —Vicki Howard, author of Brides, Inc.: American Weddings and the Business of Tradition

"Should appeal to scholars and general readers alike for its clear prose, perceptive analysis, and captivating anecdotes drawn from wedding industry insiders, magazines, movies and television, and brides, as well as brides-to-be." —Jessica Weiss, author of To Have and to Hold: Marriage, the Baby Boom, and Social Change

"Brimming with insights, Jellison's book illuminates the American way of wedding—with all its tensions and diverse impulses." —Beth Bailey, author of From Front Porch to Back Seat: Courtship in Twentieth-Century America and Sex in the Heartland

"Jellison's compelling portrait demonstrates that the American wedding ceremony is both enormously adaptable and incredibly staid—and continually fascinating to read about." —Jennifer Scanlon, editor of The Gender and Consumer Culture Reader
