EDITOR'S NOTES

The Philosophy Documentation Center is happy to announce that THE PHILOSOPHER'S INDEX data base has been placed into Lockheed Corporation's DIALOG Information Retrieval System. This means that philosophers now have on-line computer access to THE PHILOSOPHER'S INDEX data base at their own libraries. With the assistance of reference librarians, philosophers will be able to greatly enhance their research as they will be able to directly query DIALOG. Philosophers and other users will be able to search by subject or by subject relationships, by author, by type of document, by word frequency use, etc. Lockheed estimates that a typical search will cost between $5 and $15. The exact cost is dependent on the number of "hits" and on computer connect time. Some libraries have special budgets which pay for all or part of the cost for searches of computer data bases. For further information, please contact either your local reference librarian or write to the Philosophy Documentation Center, Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, Ohio 43403.
