

Author Guidelines

Folklorica publishes materials in English. Authors are encouraged to translate their manuscripts into English prior to submission. Submissions in Slavic and East European languages may be considered if a translator is available.

Authors are encouraged to become members of Slavic, East European, and Eurasian Folklore Society prior to submission, since the journal is made possible by member support.

Folklorica accepts original submissions only. Do not send a previously published article, even if it has appeared in another language.

Manuscripts should be submitted electronically (files in Microsoft Word (.doc NOT .docx) or RTF format sent as an email attachment).

Each article must be preceded by a 200-word abstract.

Please use minimum formatting, do not fully justify. Use endnotes, but do not use automatic numbering or automatic endnote generation.

Manuscripts normally should not exceed 35 pages in length (including endnotes). For more detailed information, see the Folklorica Style Sheet online.

Peer Review

All manuscripts will be submitted for evaluation to two outside reviewers. Reviewers are anonymous. Decision on publication normally takes up to three months.
