

TICC GUIDES AVAILABLE FROM NALLD PUBLICATIONS CENTER

One of the purposes for which NALLD was founded was to facilitate lab directors helping each other, and sharing their ideas. Making Tape Set TICC GUIDES available through our NALLD Publications Center was a natural extension of this idea.

For the uninitiated, TICC stands for Tape Index Correlation Code. It is a detailed guide which tells how each reel of tape correlates to the printed text by chapter, page, & type of exercise. Some also give times for each drill. These TICC GUIDES are the heart of a sound information retrieval system for the tape library. They allow both teacher and student to use tapes more effectively in planning a course of study.

Every set of tapes should have such a guide. Since publishers do not always provide them, individual schools make up their own. Through NALLD we can exchange such guides. Here is how the system works:

1. You must be a NALLD member to use this service.
2. Single copies of most TICC GUIDES are available from NALLD FREE, IF you follow these directions exactly.
3. We are unable to provide multiple copies. However, you have our permission to reproduce or copy any material received from the Publications Center provided you identify the source by the line:
—Reprinted by permission of the National Association of Language Laboratory Directors.
4. The TICC GUIDE portion of the Publications Center has been moved to The University of Wisconsin at Madison.
  - a. Send a 10 x 13 inch manila envelope, which is pre-addressed.
  - b. The envelope must be stamped with sufficient postage for all items requested plus an additional  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. for the envelope. The weight of each item is listed below.
  - c. Your request must be on one of our NALLD order blanks which are distributed with each issue of the Journal.
5. In addition to the new guides listed in this issue of the Journal, there are forty-nine (49) other TICC GUIDES in fourteen (14) languages which were listed before in Vol. 4, No. 4 (May, 1970). Note that these were listed by "Category Item Numbers" for ordering purposes from the Publication Center. From now on, all TICC GUIDES will simply be ordered by original TICC Number, Author, & Title.
