

Sony introduces:

The first learning system that teaches anytime, anywhere.

It's the new Sony TC 96 L portable Cassette-Corder. Now students can receive the benefits of a structured learning experience anytime, anywhere—at home, on field trips, at the library, or anyplace there might be supplementary materials you want included.

Because a single switch on the TC 96 L converts it from a standard audio recorder to an actual learning system. So no matter where a student is, he can listen to your instructional materials and record his own responses on a separate track without erasing instructional material. A balance knob controls playback volumes of both tracks, allowing either to be heard individually or with emphasis on either track. In addition, the built-in pause control and the skip back-review feature allow for effective self-pacing.

The TC 96 L can be powered by batteries, a rechargeable battery pack, AC current or car battery.

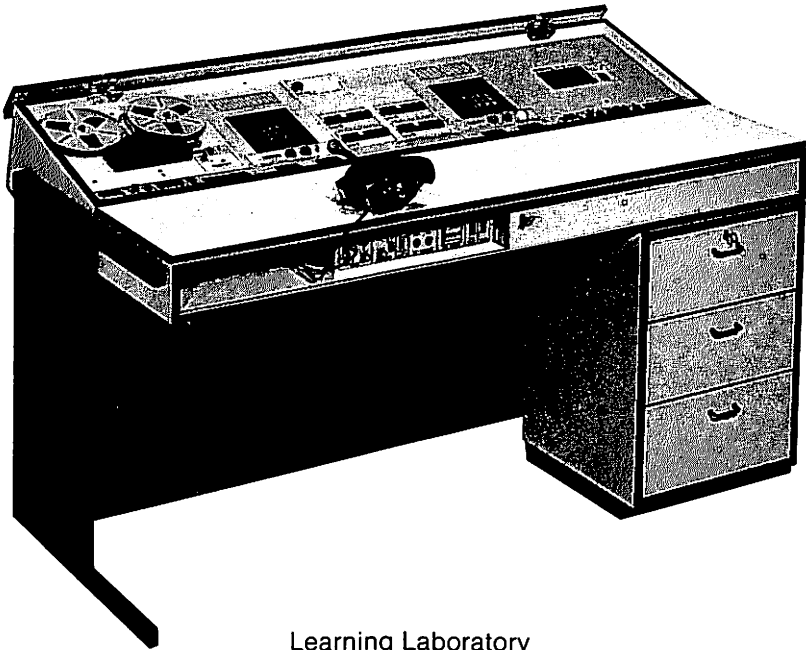

To find out more about the new Sony TC 96 L, write to the Sony Learning Systems Department SN-204

"We Hold These Truths..."

... and here's the evidence.

P/H Electronics has developed a powerful 2 to 12-channel system with absolutely wireless receiver/headsets (that's freedom!). Light-weight, comfortable, tough... with trouble-free, transistorized design, this system can be used in any classroom, in libraries or instructional media centers... by unlimited numbers of students.

System provides clear distortion-free reproduction of voice or music... even in stereo. Receiver/headsets turn off automatically when the console is turned off, turn on again by simply pressing the "on" button. A microphone that rotates 360° is optional.

Another first from P/H... the manufacturers of Moni-Com II,<sup>TM</sup> the two-way wireless language laboratory.
