The Software Encyclopedia 1986-1987

Master the information explosion with the new 1986-1987 Software Encyclopedia which has just been released by R. R. Bowker.

Providing the most extensive and up-to-date listing available of software packages from over 4,000 publishers, The Software Encyclopedia puts you in the know. Reorganized for easy access and featuring over 1,000 new programs developed in the last year, this sourcebook is essential to anyone who owns or uses a microcomputer.

Among the many new features in this year's edition is the integrated Hardware/Applications Index which allows users to quickly locate the programs that are compatible with a specific computer system.

In all, over 27,000 software programs are listed both alphabetically and by hardware compatibility. Full information is provided for each entry: what it does, number of disks, version, series, authors, grade level, release date, compatible hardware, microprocessor type, requisite operating system, languages, necessary memory, price, ISBN identification number, order number, and publisher name—virtually everything a user needs to know.

On Cassette 1986-1987

The audiocassette market is booming. This year's edition of On Cassette identifies over 20,000 spoken-word audiocassettes and nearly double the number of producers and distributors.

On Cassette represents the most complete and current guide: what's available, who's the producer, and where it can be found. Separate indexes list the more than 20,000 entries alphabetically by title, author, and reader/performer. Each entry includes title, author, performer, number of cassettes, running time, whether the version is abridged, a dramatization or a reading, producer, publication date, order number, purchase price, (and rental when available), along with descriptive annotation.

North American On-Line Directory

The 1987 directory of online information products and services with names and numbers is now revised and updated by over 80%.

Some 23,270 databases and 1,087 assorted producers are separately listed and profiled in Part One of The North American Online Directory. All publishers, associations, institutes, and other organizations that produce online databases are listed. Entries furnish full contact information including address, telephone, telex, WATS, and cable numbers, foreign offices, and the names of key personnel. Producers are further sorted by services offered, such as abstracting, machine reading or translating.

Part Two has five sections that cover ONLINE VENDORS, TELECOMMUNICATIONS NETWORKS, LIBRARY NETWORKS, INFORMATION COLLECTION AND ANALYSIS CENTERS, AND INFORMATION BROKERS.

WHO: British Comparative Literature Association

WHERE: Great Britain

WHEN: Now

WHAT: Publication of a new journal: NEW COMPARISON: A JOURNAL OF COMPARATIVE AND GENERAL LITERARY STUDIES

AGENDA: To provide a focus and a forum for scholars in Britain and abroad who take a serious interest in literature as an international or supra-national phenomenon. The editors envision NEW COMPARISON as a flexible, responsive, and accessible medium that can stimulate the study of literature without confinement to national or linguistic boundaries, and in relation to other disciplines.

NOTEWORTHY: NEW COMPARISON (published twice-yearly) wants to encourage fresh approaches and new lines of inquiry, and particularly welcomes contributions of an interdisciplinary nature, including such areas as history, philosophy, art, media studies, cultural theory, and the social sciences. There will also be space for research reports, accounts of 'work in progress', announcements, short book reviews, and notices. Coverage will be given to as wide a range of languages and literatures as possible, including literatures written in so-called minority and non-European languages. Contributions are now invited. Articles should be written in English, and quotations in foreign languages (except French) should be translated if possible. Articles of up to 10,000 words will be considered. Manuscripts, clearly typed and double spaced, with notes and bibliography on separate pages, should be sent in duplicate to the editorial address.

CONTACT: Dr. Theo Hermans, Editorial Office, NEW COMPARISON, Department of Dutch, U-C-L. Gower Street, London WC1E 6BT, England. For subscriptions and information, contact Dr. Susan Bassnett, NEW COMPARISON, Graduate School of Comparative Literature, University of Warwick, Coventry CV47AL, England
