

Journal of Dramatic Theory and Criticism

Spring 2001
Volume XV
Number 2

Contents

ARTICLES

- Forays into Grammelot: The Language of Nonsense
Erith Jaffe-Berg 3
- Theorising the Individual Body on Stage and Screen; or, the Jizz of
Martin Guerre
Richard Fotheringham 17
- Immolations: Rites of Sacrifice on the Stages of Federico García Lorca
Robert Lima 33
- Representation and the Unpresentable
Charles Campbell 49
- “(silence)”: Scripting [It], Staging [It] on the Page, for the Stage
Clark Lunberry 69
- “Intimacy” and “Separating Strangeness” in W. B. Yeats’s Drama
Natalie Crohn Schmitt 85

PRAXIS

- Melodic Speech Patterns in the Traditional Japanese Kyogen Theatre
Zvika Serper 97
- “The Arithmetic and Logic of Life”: The Forces of Commerce and Capital in a Revival of Edward Bulwer-Lytton’s Money
James Fisher 115

Joe Orton: A High Comedy of Bad Manners Joel Greenberg	133
High Ambivalence: S. N. Behrman's Disembodiment Project Robert F. Gross	145
Philip Barry and the Yankee Aristocracy Steve Vineberg	163
BOOK REVIEWS Stephen Di Benedetto, James Fisher, Ana Kothe, Erica Kylander-Clark, Stanley V. Longman, Carol Schafer	171
BOOKS RECEIVED	199