

THE JOURNAL OF GERMAN-AMERICAN STUDIES,
1969—80: AN INDEX

Compiled by
DON HEINRICH TOLZMANN
University of Cincinnati

Since 1969 nearly 400 items have been published in the Journal of German-American Studies, including articles, essays, bibliographies, reviews, notes and original German-American literature. This index is arranged in three parts: Part A is an index of the contents of the issues of the Journal, Part B is an author index, and Part C contains the subject index.

Edited since 1969 by Robert E. Ward, the Journal of German-American Studies has provided a forum for research pertaining to the history, literature and culture of the German element in the U.S. Commencing publication exactly one century after Der Deutsche Pionier (1869—1887), the Journal ranks with its predecessor and other German-American historical and literary journals as an indispensable source for data.

Originally entitled German-American Studies, the Journal assumed its present title with Vol. 11:1 (Spring 1976) when it absorbed the German-American Genealogist (1975-76), which was also edited by Robert E. Ward.

Since 1969 the field of German-American Studies has diversified and expanded greatly. It is an interdisciplinary field which continues to attract scholars and students from a variety of subject areas. The editor of the JGAS wrote in Vol. 5 (1972) that "The success of our venture to date is a credit to our contributors, editorial staff, and all of you who have provided the necessary capital by subscribing to our journal." That the field has expanded and grown is due in no small way to eleven years of the Journal of German-American Studies.
