GERMAN-AMERICAN LITERATURE

by Don Heinrich Tolzmann

341 pages 1977 LC: 77-21596 $14.00
ISBN 0-8108-1069-7

Since 1690, 3,000 German-American writers have produced some 30,000 volumes of German-language prose and poetry. With this work Tolzmann provides the first introductory history of German-American literature. Thirty-four articles by recognized German-Americanists survey the history and development of this significant non-English immigrant/ethnic literature, discussing individual writers, the German press and theater in America and regional writings of groups in Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Texas.

The contributions of 25 German-American authors are examined at length in individual articles. They are: Johann Conrad Beissel, Charles Sealsfield, Henry Harbaugh and Henry Lee Fisher, Francis Lieber, Friederich Goldbeck, Mathilde Franziska Giesler-Anneke, Karl Heinzen, Konrad Krez, Caspar Butz, Ernst Anton Zuentd, William Mueller, Albert Wolff, Karl Knortz, Robert Reitzel, Martin Drescher, Heinrich Armin Rattermann, Konrad Nies, Georg Edward, Georg Sylvester Viereck, Heinrich H. Fick, Otto Oscar Kollbrunner, Dora Grunewald, Johannes Urzidil, and Ernst Waldinger. The final article by Tolzmann surveys contemporary German-American literature, 1970-1976.
