Remembrance
Elizabeth Snow Rowe, PhD, MBA
erowe@neurokc.com

In a snow-filled Kansas pasture, the sun sparkles on the covered ground, framed by stream and wooded hill. Leafless sihouetted trees make blue shadows on the snow. Like Grandma Snow's painting of a Connecticut woods, my father's favorite. She gave it to him when he was dying.

Included in Sailing Downwind by Elizabeth Snow Rowe