

Remembrance

Elizabeth Snow Rowe, PhD, MBA
erowe@neurokc.com

In a snow-filled Kansas pasture,
the sun sparkles on the covered ground,
framed by stream and wooded hill.
Leafless silhouetted trees
make blue shadows on the snow.
Like Grandma Snow's painting of a Connecticut woods, my father's favorite.
She gave it to him when he was dying.

Included in Sailing Downwind by Elizabeth Snow Rowe